IRAQ'S FOREIGN MINISTER: □□□□□□ SITUATION IN SYRIA IS THREATENING OUR NATIONAL SECURITY'

- 03.07.2020

Middle East Monitor (2 July 2020)

Iraqi Foreign Minister Fuad Hussein stressed that the ongoing state of unrest in Syria constitutes a serious threat to Iraqs national security.

According to the Foreign Ministrys statement, during his participation via videoconference at the Brussels IV Conference on Supporting the future of Syria and the region, Hussein emphasised that: Iraq supports preserving Syrias unity, sovereignty, territorial integrity, independence and non-interference in its internal affairs, and endorses its reintegration in Arab politics.

The Iraqi minister stated that the political solution is the only guarantee to stop the Syrian peoples suffering, while reiterating the need to fight all terrorist organisations without exception, specifically Daesh and its ideology.
