Necessary conditions haven't been created for the work of the Demarcation Commission, the Armenian Foreign Minister Ararat Mirzoyan said.

His remarks came during the meeting with MPs on January 19, while responding to the question of an MP from the ruling Civil Contract Party Taguhi Ghazaryan.

According to the minister, these conditions are now being discussed.

"The Armenian and Russian sides have repeatedly stated that they are discussing the conditions under which the aforementioned commission can begin its work. Nevertheless, it will be rather difficult to establish and, moreover, to engage this commission until there are mechanisms to increase the level of security in the border zone, aimed at preventing intentional or unintentional collisions," Mirzoyan said.
