As Baku and Yerevan held another meeting to discuss steps toward a peace treaty following the war over Karabakh, a trilateral meeting between Turkey, Azerbaijan and Georgia discussed cooperation and the reconstruction of the liberated areas.

The leaders of Azerbaijan and Armenia agreed in a meeting in Brussels Sunday to "advance discussions" on a peace treaty for the Karabakh region that witnessed a war in 2020, the European Council's president said.

European Council President Charles Michel held bilateral talks with both Azerbaijani President İlham Aliyev and Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan before they had a trilateral at which Karabakh was discussed.
