Tanzania's skepticism toward China has opened new space for India to upgrade a longstanding partnership.

The recent revitalization and reinforcement of India's engagement with Tanzania is a result of China's deteriorating global image as an equal partner of choice offering so-called win-win cooperation in many parts of the world including Tanzania. China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) in Tanzania has contributed to economic and environmental vulnerabilities in the East African nation; that, in turn, has created space for New Delhi to expand and consolidate its bilateral engagement with Dar es Salaam.
