The European Union has officially launched the accession talks with Ukraine and Moldova today, at the separate intergovernmental conferences in Luxembourg. The Ukrainian delegation is led by Olga Stefanishyna, Deputy Prime Minister for European and Euro-Atlantic integration, while the Moldovan delegation is headed by Prime Minister Dorin Recean.

The EU accession negotiations with a candidate country are launched after unanimous agreement by all member states endorsed by the European Council. Negotiations take place in intergovernmental conferences between the governments of EU member states and that of the candidate country.
