Kazakhstan has sent its first shipment of oil from the Kashagan field to the port of Baku for further transportation through the Baku-Tbilisi-Ceyhan (BTC) pipeline.

The oil, loaded on the Kazakh tanker Taraz, departed from the port of Aktau and is now en route to Baku, where it will be transported via the BTC pipeline system to the Mediterranean Sea.

Previously, Kazakhstan shipped oil from the Tengiz field via BTC. However, the new shipment marks a significant expansion of Kazakhstan's oil export routes.
