US President Donald Trump set to host Japanese Premier Shigeru Ishiba for first in-person summit in Washington, DC.

Increased imports of liquefied natural gas (LNG) from the US, as well as a stalled deal on the purchase of US Steel, are likely to be discussed as President Donald Trump hosts visiting Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Ishiba in Washington, DC on Friday.

Ishiba arrived in the US for a three-day visit and his first face-to-face sit down with Trump, who was inaugurated for his non-consecutive second term last month.
