Uzbekistan is said to supply Kazakhstan with 16bn cubic meters of water by October 1, 2025 [1] increase of 1bn cubic meters compared to the previous water management year (October 2023 [2] 2024). This decision was announced by Kazakhstans Ministry of Water Resources and Irrigation following the 12th meeting of the Joint Working Group on Deepening Bilateral Water Cooperation.

In addition to increasing water transfers, Uzbekistan has committed to ensuring a stable supply of water through the Dostyk Canal during the 2025 irrigation season. This measure aims to mitigate the risk of water shortages in Kazakhstans agricultural regions.

Kazakhstans Minister of Water Resources and Irrigation, Nurzhan Nurzhigitov, and Uzbekistans Minister of Water Resources, Shavkat Xamrayev, also reached an agreement to jointly repair key interstate canals. The initiative will improve water supply to farmers in Kazakhstans Turkestan region and Uzbekistans Jizzakh region.
