The Patriots for Europe, a new far-right force in Brussels, has won the right to lead the European Parliaments 2040 climate target discussions.

For years, the extreme right was content pooh-poohing the European Unions climate efforts from the back benches. No longer.

On Tuesday, the far-right Patriots for Europe group in the European Parliament seized control of talks over the blocs next emissions-cutting milestone, a surprise move that shocked centrist MEPs.
