Japan's first female Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi vowed Tuesday to "bring back" diplomacy and to boost ties with the US.

"I will bring back Japan's diplomacy to the center of the world to flourish," Takaichi said at her first news conference after being elected.

"Both on the inside and outside, Japan faces major crises. We have no time to stand by idly," she said, adding that her Cabinet ministers will fulfill their missions in their respective fields in the lower and upper houses.
