Greek Cypriot Administration of Southern Cyprus Leader Nikos Christodoulides openly praised EOKA, a Greek terrorist organization known for its massacres against both Turkish and Greek Cypriots during the 1950s, in a recent speech at a memorial event in Kokkinotrimithia Detention Centers.

During his address at the ceremony, Christodoulides glorified the organizations actions, describing EOKAs struggle as one that embodies the universal standards of Hellenism and calling the groups violent uprising on April 1, 1955, a historical purification and a national renaissance.

The historical imprint and moral mark of EOKAs struggle transcended the borders of Cyprus and Greece, Christodoulides declared, adding that the organization continues to serve as an inexhaustible source of inspiration for the Cypriot people.
