The Straits Times (10 November 2025)

Thailand announced it was suspending the implementation of a peace agreement with Cambodia overseen by US President Donald Trump on Nov 10, after a landmine blast injured two Thai soldiers on patrol near the border.

The follow-up to the joint declaration that we have been doing for about a week will stop, including the release of 18 detained Cambodian soldiers, government spokesman Siripong Angkasakulkiat said.

Thailands Prime Minister Anutin Charnvirakul had earlier threatened to derail the fragile peace deal with Cambodia □ signed just in October □ after the landmine explosion injured the Thai soldiers.
