Azerbaijan has officially joined the Consultative Meeting of the Heads of Central Asian States as a full-fledged member. The announcement was made at the summit by Uzbekistan's President Shavkat Mirziyoyev, Kazinform News Agency reports.

In his remarks, Shavkat Mirziyoyev thanked the participants of the meeting and expressed gratitude to the participants and highlighted that Azerbaijani President Ilham Aliyev had been granted membership in the format.

This step paves the way for the creation of a strong bridge between Central Asia and the South Caucasus and the formation of a common space for cooperation. Undoubtedly, this will strengthen the strategic ties and stability of the two regions. I sincerely thank all my esteemed colleagues for supporting this important decision and congratulate Mr. Aliyev on joining the Consultative Meetings format as a full-fledged participant," Shavkat Mirziyoyev said.
