South Korea has signed a framework agreement to export K2 main battle tanks and K808 armored vehicles to Peru, the Seoul-based Yonhap news agency reported Wednesday.

The signing took place in Peru on Tuesday and was attended by Peruvian President Jose Jeri, and Lee Yong-chul, head of South Korea's Defense Acquisition Program Administration.

Under the deal, defense firm Hyundai Rotem will partner with Peru's Army Weapons and Ammunition Factory to deliver 54 K2 tanks and 141 K808 wheeled armored vehicles by next year, according to a presidential office statement cited by Yonhap News.
