Armenia has confirmed that discussions on importing fuel from Azerbaijan are underway, marking a notable development in economic dialogue between the two countries, Azernews reports.

Deputy Prime Minister of Armenia Mher Grigoryan told the Armenian service of Radio Liberty that recent talks on oil and oil product supplies took place in Gabala during his meeting with Azerbaijani Deputy Prime Minister Shahin Mustafayev.

Responding to whether Yerevan and Baku had already reached an agreement, Grigoryan stated: Yes, discussions have been held, and there are opportunities for cooperation.
