Kazakhstan hopes that a comprehensive peace agreement between Azerbaijan and Armenia will be concluded soon, Azernews reports.

President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev made the remarks at the International Peace and Trust Forum held in Ashgabat.

In our view, the signing of a joint peace declaration by Azerbaijan and Armenia carries historical significance and opens broad prospects for multifaceted cooperation both within the region and beyond. We hope that a full-fledged peace agreement, ensuring stability in the South Caucasus, will be signed in the near future, Tokayev said.
