You should not look for a hidden agenda or a plan to expel Russia from Armenia just because we are deepening relations with the US or the EU, said Foreign Minister Ararat Mirzoyan on Public Television.

The foreign minister stressed that the Armenian government does not intend to cut political or economic ties with Russia. And we openly communicate this to our international partners to avoid misunderstandings. We are building and deepening relations with various geopolitical centres, he added.

In his pre-New Year interview, Mirzoyan discussed the countrys foreign policy course for 2025, hybrid threats from Russia and other states amid closer ties with the West. He also addressed the normalisation of relations with Azerbaijan and Turkey. The minister assured that significant achievements are possible in the coming year.
