Representatives of governments, financial institutions and business communities from member states of the Organization of Turkic States (OTS) gathered on May 13 in Astana to discuss expanding economic integration through industrial cooperation, logistics, agriculture and digitalization during a business forum held ahead of the informal summit in Turkistan.

Speaking at the forum titled Economic Integration and Cooperation of OTS Countries: New Opportunities in Industry, Agriculture, Logistics and Digitalization, Kazakhstans Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of National Economy Serik Zhumangarin said practical economic cooperation among Turkic states is becoming increasingly important amid global competition for investment, technology and transport routes.

According to him, the OTS market includes more than 170 million people and possesses significant industrial, agricultural and transport potential, reported the Prime Ministers press service.
