Anadolu Agency (2 June 2026)

South Korea and the US opened formal talks in Seoul on Tuesday to advance key security and economic agreements reached during last years summit between President Lee Jae Myung and his US counterpart Donald Trump.

The discussions mark the first working-level negotiations aimed at implementing commitments contained in a joint fact sheet adopted by the two allies.

Among the most closely watched agenda items are South Koreas push to develop nuclear-powered submarines, secure uranium enrichment and spent-fuel reprocessing capabilities for peaceful purposes, and expand bilateral shipbuilding cooperation.
