Georgia's Minister of Internal Affairs, Sul Khan Tamazashvili, has wrapped up an official visit to Armenia with a clear message: the two countries' law enforcement agencies are set to work even closer together.

The visit, hosted by Armenian Interior Minister Arpine Sargsyan, included a formal welcoming ceremony, a wreath-laying tribute to fallen Armenian police officers, bilateral talks, and a meeting with Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan – all pointing to a steady deepening of ties between Tbilisi and Yerevan.
