South Korea announced Wednesday that it will reopen all 12 peace-themed walking routes near the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating the two Koreas for this year's program.

The trails, collectively known as the DMZ Peace Trail, will be open from April 17 to Nov. 30, Yonhap News Agency reported, citing a statement from the Ministry of Culture, Sports and Tourism.

Operations will be temporarily suspended in July and August due to the summer heat.
