The United Kingdom's Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office (FCDO) marked on Tuesday the fourth anniversary of Russia's military campaign in Ukraine by adding new sanctions against the former country and providing more assistance to the latter.

Britain's support package includes £20 million for the restoration of the conflict-hit country's damaged energy infrastructure, £5.7 in humanitarian aid, and helicopter training for Ukrainian pilots. Meanwhile, the UK sanctioned 297 individuals and entities linked with helping Russia's campaign, including some from China. Among those were PJSC Transneft and the State Atomic Energy Corporation Rosatom.
